Police Say Kids Were Never Out Of Their Control

This is a statement from Lt. John Walsh, of the Daly City police department, on the disturbance Halloween night at Pip's Drive-In:

"As far as we were concerned, it was just a large group of kids congregating to have fun on Halloween. The only trouble here was some were throwing eggs and tomatoes. The kids were never out of control. A riot is out of control. These kids were never out of hand.

"I guess it took about half an hour to break up the entire crowd. A lot of them headed for the bowling alley, but we didn't let them get in there. They were dispersed before they arrived.

"Any shopping center will draw kids. It's just a place to meet. All the kids know where Pips is. It never reached a point where it was out of control at any time.

"The kids started congregating at about 6:30 p.m. There was the children's costume party at the shopping center, and we kept the larger kids on the other side of the highway as much as possible. We had about 15 auxiliary and eight regular officers.

"This is the first year we haven't had several dances in Daly City. Every other year they met at the schools. This year, there was only the Hi-Fi 'teen dance at the War Memorial Building.

"In our estimation, there wasn't an unruly crowd. No garbage cans were overturned, and nothing broken."

County Needs Leadership On Bomb Shelters

San Mateo County supervisor James V. Fitzgerald this week blasted what he called "federal procrastination" on civil defense bomb shelters and fallout problems in general.

Fitzgerald, who is chairman of the San Mateo County Civil Defense Disaster and Planning Board, said he is "frustrated," but never discouraged over the lack of "national responsibility" on the questions.

Leadership is what everyone needs on the question of national preparedness for civil defense, Fitzgerald said. "The government should come out and say 'this is what you should do,' and then everyone would go out and start digging and do something."

The supervisor said that Federal "proscrastination" has "put me on the spot," because Redwood City is considering a five million dollar bond issue for shelters.

SPENT IN VAIN

If the government next year decides to finance all shelters, then Redwood City would have spent its money in vain," Fitzgerald said.

"There is no clear cut direction of responsibility and formulation of action."

Fitzgerald last week attended a lengthy meeting in Los Angeles of the National Civil Defense Council in which the problem was hashed over, but nothing was brought out on whether the government would actually appropriate any money toward shelters. It was brought out that shelters for all Americans would cost 20 billion dollars.

NATIONAL CONTROVERSY

Major points of national controversy include:

The moral question of whether a family has a right to seek safety for itself during a nuclear attack and use force to keep the door shut.

Who will pay for the shelters?

Is a fallout shelter the right way to fight Communism?

Will bomb shelters really save lives?

Brig. Gen. Robert L. Scott, Jr. (ret.), World War II Flying Tiger commander and author of "God Is My Co-Pilot," called fallout shelters "a temporary means of putting off the inevitable."

San Francisco Mayor George Christopher said the thought of a group living for a month in a small shelter was "incomprehensible and ridiculous." California Governor Brown said "It would be senseless to build big shelters if one of those hundred megaton bombs would wipe it out."

Milwaukee Mayor Henry Maier has criticized the Federal government for urging individual citizens to build their own shelters. He said they should offer a Federal financing program. He asked about pensioners or those persons struggling to pay off a mortgage. "Is survival to depend on a person's wealth or economic classification?"

Football Deaths Arouse Inquiry; McGrath, Gonella, Matisi Speak

By Jim Goldsborough

With the death of the 20th high school football player in early October, a good many eyes are being focused on the sport of "Saturday's heroes" with something other than the usual adoring glance.

Why so many deaths in one season?

A recent clinical study by a University of Michigan neurosurgeon reported on the deaths of 14 players who died from brain, head, and spinal injuries. The following recommendations were made:

- Build helmets of more resilient materials so as to absorb shock. Use leather or soft plastice instead of the solid hard plastic.
- Use a flap of firm sponge rubber behind the neck so that the helmet does not damage the spine when the head is thrown back.
- Use a shorter face guard or none at all.
- Use a breakaway chin strap permitting the helmet to give under severe stress.

Football is a sport that Americans have played pretty much the same way for many years. If all at once a wave of injuries appears that is a sharp increase over previous years, then attention should be given to the possible causes. There are normal hazards to any sport. These the player accepts as a part of the sport. Inadequate equipment is something else. If there is evidence that the plastic helmet is inadequate, then an investigation ought to be made.

Among the Jefferson High School district's coaches there is unanimity on at least one point: The leather helmet is at least as good, if not better, than the controversial plastic helmet.

"In my opinion the leather helmet is the best," said Terra Nova Coach Floyd Gonella. There's no real problem with the plastic when it fits, but if it does not fit, then the trouble starts.

Over at Jefferson, Coach McGrath had this to say: "We've been using the plastic helmet since 1958, and along with others have been becoming more and more dissatisfied."

This is the first year that the plastic suspension helmet has been used at Jefferson. This helmet is constructed like the U. S. Army combat helmet. A webbing arrangement fits over the head and keeps the plastic frame suspended. In the controversial foam rubber plastic helmet the headgear rests directly on the face and head.

"In the past we've had no injuries. This year we've had more than in the previous nine years," said McGrath. "We're thinking of going back to leather. Many of the plastic helmets crack and break. The prevailing thought is that the leather gives."

The evidence, however, is not clear. To many it is the suspension helmet that is the culprit. Last week at Jeff, according to Coach McGrath, "two boys got banged on the noggin, and were out for a week." However, on the frosh-soph team two others were hurt, and that team uses the conventional sponge rubber.

If not directly favored by all, then at least the leather has no enemies. Over at Westmoor, Coach Pete Matisi had this to say:

"We've found the all-plastic foam rubber helmet to be satisfactory. It's all foam rubber—not suspension. However, I've played with the leather and found it just as satisfactory."

At this point, the evidence seems to indicate that the plastic helmets cannot be overlooked as a factor in this season's 20 football deaths. There could be other causes to be sure. It could just be coincidence. It could be that the 20 players had some other physical injury that played a part. As Coach Gonella said, "the injuries don't tell you anything. The kid could have taken a fall and hurt his head at home."

It could be coincidence. But it probably isn't. If there has been an unusual number of deaths this year, and the methods of counting them haven't changed, and the game itself hasn't changed, then it may well be that the equipment is playing a role. Perhaps Coach Gonella has a point when he says:

"I would like to see the facts checked into. I would like to see some committee set up to check into this. It should be investigated before all this publicity is given. They haven't been giving the facts."

Coach Gonella went on: "At least the foam is better than the suspension. If the costs were equal between the other two, it's hard for me to say which I would choose. The leather helmet probably is best, but it costs too much."

The Terra Nova coach had some recommendations for football playing regardless of what helmet is being used:

- Take a thorough physical. Be doubly sure that your physical condition is strong enough for this rugged contact sport.
- Make sure the uniform fits correctly. Shoulder pads, and particularly helmets are dangerous when incorrectly fitted.
- Understand simple rules of good health. No standing around after a fast work-out. Statistics show that most injuries occur just after the half. Don't forget that second half warm-up.

It's this kind of advice that can cut down on injuries and

Horn Noises Ire Housewife

Dear Editor:

Please accept this letter as a loud protest against the new horn installed at the fire house on Lake Merced boulevard.

The previous horn, or signal, was annoying enough, but this one is loud enough to wake people out of a sound sleep.

It is beyond me to understand why a community such as Westlake is forced to tolerate a blast everytime some well-meaning housewife burns a meal and sets the kitchen on fire. Certainly some other means of calling for help could be employed.

Sincerely,
MRS. HENRY NIEBOLT,
39 Northgate Avenue,
Daly City.

No Increase In Daly City Youth Arrests

Juvenile arrests in Daly City have shown no appreciable increase over the past year, Philip LaBruzzo, juvenile officer reported.

A spot check of months shows that in May, 1960 there were 28 arrests, including six burglaries, three auto thefts, four petty thefts, one malicious mischief, 10 runaways and three taken into protective custody.

In May, 1961, there were 24 arrests, including two for auto theft, four petty theft, three sex offenses, one liquor law violation, nine runaway, one incorrigible and four other offenses.

In March, 1960, the Daly City police arrested 23. Last March 24 were arrested.

There were 20 arrests each in August, 1960 and August, 1961. In June, 1960, 23 were arrested. A total of 31 were arrested in June of this year.

Last month showed a jump in arrests over September of 1960 when the total jumped from 14 arrests to 30. In September, 1961, four youths were arrested for burglary, two for petty theft, one sex offense, nine liquor laws violations, three truancies, eight loitering and three other offenses.

Officer LaBruzzo said "field interrogation has gone a long way to deterring crime." Police issue cards to juveniles when they are seen loitering on the street.

Cards contain the address, phone number, day and what street the youths were observed on.

Police keep a monthly spot map. The card routine is more or less directed at stopping youths from congregating. It encourages them to go home, officer LaBruzzo said. Officers are mostly taking measures

Housewife's Car Hits A House

A Pacifica housewife was hospitalized Friday, Oct. 20 after her car left the road, struck a fence and smashed into a house on Westmoor avenue.

Mrs. Dolores Moore, 39, 544 Vista Mar avenue, Pacifica, was treated at Junipero Serra Hospital for a cut forehead and possible rib fracture. Her car struck the Arthur Barbata residence, 4 Westmoor.

The driver was assertedly speeding, police reported. The car was a total wreck and damage to the house was considerable, officers noted.

Two Are Injured Playing Football

Michael Ireland, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ireland, 14 Morningside drive, Daly City, was admitted at Peninsula Hospital last weekend for treatment of a dislocated knee suffered in a football game at Westmoor High School.

Rolland Lively, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Lively, 479 Ferndale avenue, South San Francisco, suffered an injured left shoulder playing football at Hillside playground in South San Francisco. He was treated and discharged.

BBB Recommends Shelter Checks

The San Francisco Better Business Bureau has come up with a list of suggestions for you fallout shelter builders.

- Check the reliability of your contractor.
- Make sure he has the necessary building permits before he starts.
- Be sure that your contract is in accord with civil defense specifications.
- Get a complete description of material and equipment to be used.

The Bureau reminds us that the Office of Civil Defense recommends that shelters be built so as to serve a useful purpose during peacetime, and that the shelter be adaptable to new devices that are developed.

Halloween Youth Riot Quelled By Police, Firemen

Daly City police and firemen broke up a very large juvenile Halloween near-riot at about 9 p.m. Tuesday at Pips Drive-In, Alemany at Lake Merced boulevard, and arrested four persons.

Police officers used a "bull horn," electric megaphone, to tell some 800 teenagers in the area they were violating the peace and ordered them dispersed.

But it wasn't until fire units arrived with high pressure hoses squirting 1,250 gallons of water per minute from fire trucks that the crowd broke up. Youths threw bottles and cans at the fire trucks, but didn't steal anything from the vehicles.

Crowds of youths left the scene at Pips Drive-In and were later dispersed by police in the area of Walgreen's Drug Store in Westlake and near the Westlake Bowl.

Merrill Dee Mecham, 18, of 40 Cerro drive, was arrested for disturbing the peace after J. Merritt, manager of the Standard Service Station, near the drive-in, ordered him off the premises with a gun.

Also arrested for disturbing the peace was Clyde A. Robinson, 19, of Travis Air Force Base, and a 15-year-old youth, found drunk and helpless at Alp and Mission streets.

In another Halloween incident, police arrested John A. Espiasse, 41, on a drunk charge after Maxine Belfils, 159 Werner street, reported to police that he was trying to break into her house.

Don Letcher, hoseman for the Daly City fire department central station, was at the scene of the near-riot at Pips Drive-In Tuesday night. This was his view of the riot.

"It was a risky situation for the police and fire departments—a needless risk. There were a lot of kids there whose parents didn't know they were there.

FIREMEN USE HOSES

"I don't know what time they started to congregate. The police were there a couple of hours before we were called. We were told to roll in at about 9 p.m. I figured over 500 kids were there.

"We put some water on the ground, a light blast along the feet of the crowd. We pretty

City Sponsors Halloween Dance; 400 Dancers Avoid 'Teen Riot

The Daly City Recreation Department had 400 Daly City youths at a dance at the War Memorial Tuesday night. A water heater that broke temporarily loosed gallons of water on the dance floor, but the Halloween event was not stopped.

There was no connection between the riot at Pip's Drive-In and the minor accident at the War Memorial.

"We had 400 kids at our dance," said Recreation Director Charles E. Vincent. "None left until 10:30. None of our kids were at that riot.

"We could accommodate far more that that, but generally speaking it is too far to come to accommodate kids from the other side of the highway. Over there we only have a small club that accommodates 150. To have any kind of function of any size would be to invite trouble."

Supervisorial District Set Boundary Asked

A request that the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors amend its charter to set bounds for supervisorial districts has been asked by the Council of Democratic Clubs committee on County Government of San Mateo County.

The committee asks that the county amend the charter to provide that it be mandatory for the Board of Supervisors to set boundaries of supervisorial districts. This would be within three years after each decennial Federal census so that no supervisorial district will have less than 17 per cent or more than 23 per cent of the total county population.

It asks that the charter amendment proposal be placed on the ballot at the next county-wide election.

W. Mark Sullivan, chairman of the committee on county government, said that nine of the county's 16 city councils have studied the matter of setting boundaries for population and "only one such council has refused to make a stand for or against what is called for in that resolution."

He said that six city councils, governing 39 per cent of the population of the county have already passed such resolutions and forwarded copies of their resolutions to the board of supervisors.

Library Offers New Features

Four-hundred new books per month for the bookshelves!

Thus the book selection of Daly City's two public libraries continues to keep pace with the other expanding facilities, according to City Librarian Samuel Chandler.

A few of the new books added during October:

"Great Voices of the Reformation," by Harry E. Fosdick.

"Confessions of a Happy Man," by Art Linkletter.

"The Baby Name Finder," by Jacob Schmidt.

In addition to these, many new mysteries are added each month for the bibliophile, reported Chandler.

But the bookshelves provide just one of the sources of enjoyment for Daly City citizens. Also provided for circulation are 70 prints; from the classics to present abstractions. These are framed and available for the enjoyment of any family. Daly City libraries were the first in the area to offer such a facility.

In addition, the city libraries now own 214 long playing records. These can be circulated or enjoyed on the turntable provided by the library. A large number of telephone books is also maintained. This too, is a growing selection.

Daly City's two libraries are located at 6351 Mission St., and 275 Southgate Ave.

At the end of the month, the spot map is photographed and the police start fresh on the next month.

Research shows that very few cards are made out in residential areas and most loitering occurs in the business areas, LaBruzzo said.

Football Deaths

eliminate football fatalities. Twenty deaths in one season is an alarming number. While the verdict is not yet in on the helmets, it's still possible to do something about averting that 21st fatality.

Good conditioning is the greatest deterent to injury. It is here that the first emphasis should come. If such proper rules of conditioning, as Coach Gonella suggests, are followed, there is no reason for a healthy player to be hurt. Let's examine the helmets carefully, but let it not be a case of missing the forest for the trees.

Ground Is Broken For Fairmont Community

On a sun-swept hill overlooking the Pacific in northern San Mateo County, the Doelger Corporation broke ground for its new $40 million Fairmont planned community.

General plans for the development which lies within the Pacifica city limits, were recently approved by the city council in a decision that climaxed nearly three years of negotiations.

Henry Doelger, nationally-known developer and head of the huge Doelger Corporation, dignitaries and business leaders from the city of Pacifica and San Mateo County took part in the official groundbreaking ceremony.

"We are especially proud of the Fairmont plan," Doelger told the groundbreaking essemblage. "We have an opportunity here to develop some new ideas that will make for pleasant living."

"We respect the officials of Pacifica with whom we have developed the Fairmont project, and we are confident that it will be a real and lasting credit to the city of Pacifica."

AMBITIOUS PROJECT

Among those participating in groundbreaking ceremonies were Senator Richard J. Dolwig, Assemblymen Louis Francis and Carl Britschgi, Pacifica Mayor Gerrry Schumacher, San Mateo County Supervisors Board Chairman Edward R. McDonald and officials of neighboring cities.

The most ambitious project the city has ever approved, the 400-acre Fairmont will alter the entire face of Pacifica. Fairmont will add 1,500 new homes, 700 apartments, schools and a shopping center to the city.

The big development firm which built the nationally known Westlake community in Daly City expects to complete Fairmont in about three years. In a departure from most residential subdivisions, the plans include wide greenbelt areas including riding and hiking trails and playgrounds, hillside landscaping, a firehouse, park paving and turfing.

THREE SCHOOL DISTRICTS

Three elementary Laguna Salada district schools will be located in the new development.

Doelger engineers filed a tentative map of Fairmont earlier this week.

Construction will start immediately, according to Doelger. The corporation has already received a grading permit, and awarded a contract in excess of $2,000,000 to the grading firm of Arthur (Buzz) Haskins.

More than 8,000,000 cubic yards of earth will be moved on the site in preparation for the building program, making this one of the largest dirt moving jobs of its type to take place in California.

The Handsome Artichoke

In coastal gardens especially, the Artichoke not only produces its wonderfully edible buds for the table but makes a handsome plant in the garden as well. Inland, the bud development suffers from heat; but the plants themselves will thrive. You can plant Artichokes this month or next and figure on cutting some buds a year from now. The plants will produce for several years demanding little except water and annual cutting to the ground when food production has stopped.

S.M. County To Lose Hills

Requirements for highway and tidelands fill in San Mateo County is so great that planners see the eventual terracing of all hills in the county.

First on the schedule for terracing are the San Bruno Mountains of the Crocker Lands Co.

This was disclosed at the meeting of the "mutual problems" committee of the San Mateo and San Francisco supervisors.

Committee chairman T. Louis Chess, San Mateo supervisor, urged a survey that would consider a mammoth conveyor belt system to haul the fill from the hills.

Five million cubic yards of fill are now being moved from San Bruno Mountains.

well soaked the ones that were there. Police had loudspeakers. The kids splattered the police cars with fruit and smeared their windows with shaving cream.

"Three of us were sitting on the back of the truck with fire hoses. We made about seven or eight passes around Tips. It broke them up.

"They broke up and then started stopping traffic on Lake Merced boulevard. They just filled the street; the cars couldn't get through. Then they went to Walgreen's and the department sent us there to break them up. It didn't seem to do much good. The kids were throwing broken bottles, tin cans, shaving cream, and all kinds of fruit — oranges and grapefruit.

"Any kids that went home wet that night were probably in the riot at Pips Drive-In. The girls who were there were bad. They were really foul-mouthed. They egged the boys on. It was a bad night for the community."

emptions for shelter builders. Ending their 63rd annual conference in San Francisco, the California municipal officials adopted a resolution urging such property tax exemptions as $75 (in assessed valuation) for every person—up to ten—which a bomb shelter built by taxpayers could accommodate.

This resolution, adopted in the closing business session at the Masonic Memorial Temple, also proposed a depreciation allowance for shelter builders to cut their Federal and State income taxes.

PREPAREDNESS URGED

The League was assured by Dr. Edward Teller, University of California physicist, that "we can recover from a nuclear attack" if properly prepared.

He urged construction of community shelters, since millions of Americans would have no time to get home with only a 15-minute warning of attack.

Any scheme to send children home from school when the warning sounded, he said, would be "nonsense." He said community shelters should be built in or near schools, then the children could get there quickly.

Insisting that "we have, by and large, neglected civil defense," he said any sudden enemy attack might kill so many millions that the United States, as an ideal, as a way of life, will cease to exist." Yet proper preparedness could assure survival, he said.

Blooms In Winter

You'd have to rate the Cyclamen as one of winter's most wonderful assets. During the coolest, wettest months, it pushes up one bloom stalk after another in seemingly endless show of color. Where winters are too cold to grow this little gem outdoors, move it onto a covered porch or to a window inside the house. Give it air on occasion when you grow it as a houseplant. Otherwise, treat it much as you would a Tuberous Begonia.

The new size Ford Fairlane, available in two- and four-door models in both a Fairlane and Fairlane 500 series, has a 115.5 inch wheel base that places it right between the Falcon and the Galaxie. The Thunderbird-like roof and crisp styling mark it as a member of the Ford line.

The all new Fairlane features twice-a-year maintenance, low initial purchase price, high performance and full-size interior spaciousness. The new models will be introduced to the public on November 2.

Pacifica Freeway OK'd Work Begins In June

$3,850,000 — for half of Pacifica's controversial freeway — was approved last Thursday by the California Highway Commission.

Construction on the first half — from Edgemar freeway to Vallemar — will begin around the 1st of June. Plans for the other half — from Vallemar to Linda Mar — are not expected to be approved until 1964.

"1.1 miles south of Sharp Park road to 0.4 miles north of Manor drive in Pacifica; construct 4 lane freeway for 2.6 miles with grading and frontage roads for additional 0.6 mile (first unit of freeway in Pacifica)."

The freeway will pour commuter, industrial and tourist traffic into the city on a broad four-lane divided freeway with frontage roads for local traffic.

The commission's action climaxed 10 years of planning to improve highway facilities of this rapidly expanding San Mateo County community.

Details of bus stop locations, pedestrian areas, and underpass plans remain to be worked out with the state. The city wants bus stops put on the freeway, not on frontage roads, but state officials have claimed this creates additional engineering problems.

Work will probably begin at the Pacific Manor end, according to District Engineer R. A. Hayler, but final decision will be up to the successful contractor.

The southern portion of the freeway — Vallemar south — is linked with still uncertain plans for a freeway over the hill to San Bruno. Plans for this freeway won't be made final until the state decides where it will cross the hill.

The state will schedule public hearings on the coast-San Bruno freeway sometime in the future, and alternate routes across the hill will be discussed.

Written and Edited by Daly City Police Department

OPEN LETTER TO A TEENAGER

Dear Teenager:

Recently, in this space, the Daly City Police Department wrote an open letter to parents, in which we discussed the parents' responsibilities to their children. Now, what about the teenager's approach to some of these problems?

We always hear the plaintive cry of the teenager — "What can we do? What can we do?"

What is the answer? The answer is GO HOME!

Go home, and wash the windows, paint the woodwork. Rake the leaves. Mow the lawn. Wash the car. Learn to cook. Scrub some floors. Repair the sink. Build a boat. Get a job. Help the church. Visit the aged. Assist the poor. Study your lessons. Later, when you remember enough, and not too tired, read a book.

The fact your parents do not owe you entertainment. Your town does not owe you recreation facilities. (They PROVIDE these things, but they do not OWE you). The world does NOT owe you a living. You owe the world something. You owe it your time and energy and your talents so that no one will be at war or in poverty, or sick, or lonely again.

In plain, simple words: GROW UP. Quit being a cry baby; get out of your dream world; develop a backbone instead of a wishbone; and start acting like a man or a lady.

Your parents must sometimes grow weary of nursing, protecting, helping, appealing, begging, excusing, tolerating, denying themselves needed comforts for every whim and fancy, just because your selfish ego instead of common sense dominates your personality, and thinking, and requests.

Very truly yours,
THE DALY CITY POLICE.

TELEVISION EDUCATION: Police in an eastern city arrested a burglar who admitted having looted homes of more than $1,000 in cash and valuables.

The burglar is 11 years old. He told police he learned the technique of burglary by watching how it was done on television. Many of the stolen items he gave to friends, but the cash he kept.

Police suspected that the 11 year old boy must have had some help. Further questioning brought forth his ready identification of a seven-year-old friend, the accomplice on his burglary forays.

PERSONAL GLIMPSES — Officer John Coleman completes ten years with the Department. John worked the post-midnight hours for several years, and now patrols a beat for the First Platoon, Patrol Division. With several children at home, Officer Coleman has extended his interest in children to include active participation in the Police Athletic League and other youth work.

Officer James Bergstrom has completed six years in the business. He is married, the father of one, and is a Marine Corps veteran of the Korean Conflict. Bergstrom is currently assigned to a beat on the second platoon, Patrol Division.

Chief of Police Petrocchi has just completed 20 years with the Department. He has been Chief for the past nine years.

The ebullient Josephine Runne, secretary to the Chief, has completed six years with the Department. Jo's duties extend to operating her household, which includes three children and her husband.

IN RESERVE — Reserve training was put to practical use recently when the Departmental picture was taken. A Department picture normally includes everyone in the Department. Easy, you say? Not quite so easy. A Police Department is a 24 hour per day, seven days per week operation. Someone is always on duty, and someone is always at the Dispatcher's desk, with its radios and telephones.

How, then, to maintain communications contact with the public during the short time when all hands are required to be present for a photo?

The problem was solved with the temporary assignment of Reserve Officer Hubert Beaumont, who filled in for the duty dispatcher with efficiency and aplomb. Beaumont has been with the Department in his reserve capacity for several years, and is a professional photographer by trade.

Deadline Date For NROTC Exams Nov. 17

High school seniors and graduates have only until Nov. 17 to apply for the Navy's Reserve Officer Training Corps.

Applicants will take the nationwide competitive examination on Dec. 9 as the first step toward an appointment as midshipman.

Designed to supplement the officer output of the Naval Academy, the NROTC program makes it possible for a young man to earn a regular commission while studying at a civilian college of his choice which has an NROTC unit.

All tuition, fees and books are furnished by the Navy, and the student receives an annual retainer of $600 for not more than four years. During the summers the student goes on interesting training cruises to many parts of the world.

After completing the usual four year college course, he is commissioned in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps and goes on active duty as a prospective career officer in the Naval service. He receives the same promotional opportunities, duty assignments and benefits as his Naval Academy contemporary.

High school seniors and graduates who have reached the 17th anniversary of birth and have not reached the 21st anniversary of birth on July 1, 1962, may apply for the NROTC aptitude test.

Application forms are available at high schools, Navy Recruiting Stations or from the Chief of Naval Personnel, Department of the Navy, Washington 25, D.C.

SEABEE HONORS — The San Mateo County Naval Reserve Seabee unit was honored Oct. 30 by Under Secretary of Navy Paul Fay. To win this outstanding award, the San Mateo unit topped all of the nation's 224 Seabee divisions. Competition is based on scores achieved through excellence in advancements in rate, petty officer examination grades, active duty performance and attendance at drills. The men who planned Fay's visit were, standing left to right: F. D. Williamson, SWF2 1175 Brunswick, Daly City; R. E. Beason, CMCS 51 Regent, San Francisco; John Perrou, CMC 1137 Hanover, Daly City and K. C. Miller, BUI 261 Sequoia, South San Francisco. Seated is commading officer of the unit, Lt. L. D. Mills, 1636 Yorktown Rd., San Mateo.

Mosk Says Parents Are First Step In Halting Delinquency

"The society that has conquered space can utimately defeat delinquency."

This statement was made by Attorney General Stanley Mosk in an address to the San Mateo Democratic Business and Professional Men's Club in a luncheon address at the Villa Hotel in San Mateo on Oct. 26.

Mosk added that "The responsibility of parents in establishing the morals and ethics of good society within the minds of their children is necessarily the first step. We should—and do—strive to improve the economic security of every family.

Cain And Abel

"Before we had any administration on which to place blame, we had Cain and Abel," Mosk continued.

"The sons of Adam are still with us, the good guy and the bad guy — only in far greater numbers. It can be said, however, that the percentage has been reduced. We don't have any criminal figure on murder that matches the original 50 per cent statistic.

"The prevention of crime is an age-old problem, before which men and communities have stood frustrated. Each generation has had to meet the problem. Subsequent generations will have more of the same, unless we and they can find the preventive solution to crime.

Tackle The Problem

"Until some wizardry of prevention can be found, the only current answer suggested by some is to establish more drastic laws and punitive terms, larger police departments and bigger jails.

"But to such defeatism we cannot submit. The problem has to be tackled again and again.

"We must recognize that a sound home life, recreation, educational and employment opportunities should be a contribution to a more orderly society. Yet it is not the full answer. For some of the finest homes have produced some of our bad guys.

"We get back, then, to the precepts inculcated by parents, by the schools, the churches and the example of those who come into contact with each rising generation.

Nationwide Problem

"Our state problem is in high visibility because it is at our doorstep, but the problem is nation-wide. Crime nationally has increased faster than the nation's population. From 1950 to 1958 the national crime rate increased 56 per cent. For most of this period the loyal opposition was in charge of the administration. No one would think of placing J. Edgar Hoover as head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation as responsible for the national crime problem. By the time the problem reaches his jurisdiction, it has gone beyond the point of on return.

"The same consideration should be given the peace officers of our state and its municipalities. These officers are doing a diligent job in all our communities. They are not mind readers — it is as simple as that. They can't tell which man standing in line at a bank teller's window is going to pass over a note and threaten the bank clerk with death. There aren't enough of them to stand guard over every parked automobile which may be stolen, nor in front of every home or business that may be burglarized.

Police Not Blamed

"Yet peace officers are not oblivious to their duty. In a recent conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police in Montreal Canada, the Chief of Police of Honolulu, Daniel S. C. Liu, reported on the responsibility of local police in the breakdown of crime prevention.

"'It is inescapable that police must' accept the responsibility for a lamentable lack of progress in the dissipation of crime from our society,' said Chief Liu in a report to the conference. 'Other professions' contribution to the emancipation from the depths of disease, ignorance, oppression and want, have achieved a goodly measure of progress in the recent course of history.

With crime as generally prevalent today as at any time in many years past, police can hardly pretend to comparable success in their calling.' End quote.

"In an address to that same conference, Chief of Police Thomas Cahill of San Francisco said:

Shared Responsibility

"'Let it not be understood that we are assigning sole responsibility for the laggard crime prevention to the police,' said Cahill. 'Nor do we infer that law enforcement has not contributed effectively to criminal repression despite statistical evidence of crime increase. We recognize, however, that police self-indictment as suggested by Chief Liu is rare in the literature of crime prevention.' End quote.

"Chief Cahill urged as chairman of the 1961 IACP Crime Prevention Committee, closer association with the juvenile probation departments and the schools as well as closer relationships with all juvenile agencies.

"The foregoing comments come from the police chiefs themselves, and are not necessarily the views of this speaker. In fact, I do not share their self-criticism. I believe that as a whole the police chiefs are facing up to a difficult task.

"They are to be commended for their acceptance of some of the responsibility, but the responsibility actually must be shared by every member of a community.

"The old adage, 'do as I say, not as I do,' must give way to a 1961 criterion: 'do as I do,' and what we do should be intellectually and morally decent and honorable."

DONNA LESHER, SCHOOL SECRETARY

Donna Lesher: A Busy Girl At Jeff High

by Randy Marcus

If you happened to be around during the Golden Anniversary Celebration in Daly City, you may have noticed an attractive young lady named Donna Lesher, either riding on the Hi Teen Club float in the parade, or performing her duties as finance director for "Youth In Government Day."

Or, you may have seen her on KGO-TV last month, narrating the half time activities for the Jefferson High versus Westmoor High football game.

A Busy Girl

Donna is also a very busy girl at Jefferson High, where she is a senior. Besides maintaining a B plus average, which has made her a member of the California Scholarship Federation Honor Society, she is student body secretary, a member of the model senate, and sergeant at arms for the school patrol.

Donna has been a member of the Pep Club, the French Club, and in her junior year was class vice president and mistress of ceremonies for the Junior Assembly.

She will shortly be attending the Peninsula League Conference at El Camino High School, where 15 students from each of the peninsula high schools meet to discuss school and youth problems.

Pharmacy Plans

The Lesher family has three daughters, of which Donna is the eldest. The family moved to Daly City from San Francisco approximately eight years ago and have taken an active part in community affairs.

Mr. Lesher has been busy with the Hillside Improvement League and is a past president of the Hillside PTA.

He is especially proud of his daughter's work with the Young Democrats group in the last national election.

Donna intends to become a pharmacist and will attend the University of California upon graduation from high school.

A one-man art show will be featured Nov. 1 through Nov. 30 at Artists Cooperative, 2224 Union street, San Francisco, according to Westmoor High graduate David Mark.

David, who has won several prizes for his artistry on the local scene and in San Francisco, announces hours for his showing will be noon until 6 p. m., Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and noon until 9 p. m. on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The co-op is closed on Mondays.

The 18 year old artist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ephriam Mark, 111 Avalon drive in Weslake, will exhibit about 15 paintings. He is the youngest member of the Artists Cooperative, where he has been a member two years.

In 1957, Mark took second place in the Lions Club sponsored art show in Daly City.

The same year and also in 1958 he won a certificate of merit in scholastic art awards contest sponsored by The Emporium of San Francisco.

He won a certificate and gold key award in the same contest in 1959 and his abstract painting was awarded a blue ribbon in national competition.

In his senior year at Westmoor, in 1960, he won a statewide scholarship to the California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland. David, however, rejected this scholarship and entered San Francisco State College as an art student. His last award was first prize for an abstract oil painting at the Westlake Art Fair.

Letters To The Editor

Thanks To An Unknown Man In Rescue Squad

Dear Sir:

The purpose of this letter is to represent a "Letter of Appreciation" for services rendered by an unknown member of your rescue squad on Tuesday, 24 October.

Unfortunately, my wife was so nervous and excited that she failed to ask the gentleman for his name or badge number. The youngest of my two adopted Thai (Siamese) boys had been locked in the bathroom for some two hours when I called and a member of your Department came to the house and rescued him (Philip).

We had moved into the house only four days previously, and the older of the two boys (Jimmie) turned the lock on the inside of the door, rushed out and shut the door, leaving the smaller boy locked inside. This took place about 3 p.m.

I am in the Navy and stationed at the Federal Office Building in San Francisco, and it just happened that I had the "all-night" duty here at the office (Junior Officer of the Day watch).

My wife attempted for about an hour and twenty minutes to release Philip from the bathroom, and finally called me here at the office.

Being "on watch," I was unable to leave here, and go home to help her; therefore, I called upon your department. Of course, by this time, both my wife and Philip were crying, and in a state of nervous shock.

I am happy to report to you that a member of your Rescue Squad was on hand in less than ten minutes, and had released Philip from the bath room.

Although he is just past two years old, when the fireman reached inside and picked him up, he looked up and said "dank you." My wife and I wish to express his sentiment a thousand times over; both to the gentleman who came to the rescue, and to your department as a whole.

As I said a little earlier, we had just purchased the home at 1348 South Mayfair avenue. We had gotten to move in only four days earlier. Having just returned from overseas after eight years (four years in Hawaii, prior to statehood; and four years in Bangkok, Thailand (Siam) where we adopted the two boys) — it gave us both a wonderful feeling to know that there was someone upon who we could call when we were in distress.

Again, our heartfelt "Thanks" to your department and the unidentified member of the rescue squad who was so kind. We will be eternally in your debt, and are most grateful for "services rendered." With this in mind, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
Deryl J. Black
Chief Yeoman,
U. S. Navy.

IT'S NEWS TO VETS

Q. — As an orphan of a deceased serviceman, is it necessary that I be 18 and have finished high school to become eligible for schooling under the War Orphans Educational Assistance Act?

A. — Specialized vocational training in a below-college-level school may be taken if you have quit school, are above the compulsory school age, and the VA finds it would be to your advantage to begin your vocational education before reaching age 18.

Q.—What is the patient turnover in all VA hospitals in one year?

A.—During fiscal year 1961, which ended June 30, 1961, a total of 537,022 veterans were admitted to VA's 170 hospitals, and 540,068 were discharged during the same period.

Q.—I would like to sell my GI-loan house. How do I get clear of liability for the loan?

A. — If the purchaser takes over your loan, ask the VA regional office that has your loan records for a release from liability. If the purchaser refinances the loan and pays you, you would have to pay off the loan to be clear of liability.

Q.—As a war veteran's widow, I have been told that I may be eligible for a pension but not all widows are. How is eligibility determined?

A.—For eligibility for a VA pension, a widow must have lived continuously with the veteran from the time of marriage until the veteran's death, except where there was a separation due to the misconduct of, or procured by, the veteran without fault on the part of his wife.

The Doctor's Orders - - Leave That Milk Alone

No one over a year old should drink milk, the chairman of the public policy commission of the American Academy of General Practice said yesterday.

Dr. Walter W. Sackett Jr. of Miami, Fla., who admitted his is a controversial position, said he is a bitter foe of free milk distribution in public schools.

"I send notes to school for my own kids and ask that they be given tea or coffee instead of milk," he told the Louisville Courier-Journal in an interview.

"Why buy national suicide?" he asked.

Because they are high in cholesterol, milk and other dairy products should be eliminated from the American diet, he said.

Cholesterol is the saturated fat which sometimes piles up in coronary arteries and brings on heart attacks.

Milk is for infants, Dr. Sackett said.

"Kids ought to quit drinking milk at that time when they would ordinarily be weaned — and that is at one year," he said.

The 55 year-old physician said he was sure his statement would bring a storm of protests, but said he didn't care.

TRY PLANTING A LAWN SUBSTITUTE

If you love a picture-look lawn, but grumble and groan about keeping it that way, perhaps you're missing the point. Try planting a lawn substitute.

Now we're the first to admit that there's no real substitute for a really nice lawn. But a ground-hugging cover of green plants is nicer to look at than a perenially run-down lawn. And each neighborhood has its share of perenially run-down lawns!

Many ground covers require less maintenance than do lawns. They need only occasional trimming back when they overgrow their bounds or infrequent shearing if they mound up too high. Moreover, their water requirements are considerably below those of most lawn grasses.

Even if you are a dyed-in-the-wool lawn lover, you'll have to admit that you can't have lawns everywhere. There's room in your garden for the form fitting cover — in a parkway, along a drive, on a barren slope, or where you will.

As a substitute for lawn, Dichondra is most likely to please the man who feels there is no such thing as a lawn substitute. It forms a matting carpet that looks like lawn. Mowing isn't essential, but to have it looking really good, mow it regularly. You can seed it, or plug it into a well-prepared bed, taking the plugs from a nursery flat full of Dichondra.

Other close-cropped covers that can be substituted for a lawn — in fact if not in fancy —are Carpet Bugle, Creeping Thyme, Ornamental Strawberry and (of course) Ivy. For a contour planting on a slope, a few of the covers which are adaptable are: Creeping Thyme, Rockspray Cotoneaster and old-fashioned Periwinkle. In parkways, Aaron's Beard Ivory once again are desirable.

There are many ground covers that a California Association of Nurserymen member can show you — from colorful Ice Plants to the more shrub-like trailing Rosemary. And the nice thing about them all is that they look much the same in the nursery as they will one day look in your garden. It takes little to imagine just how nice that future day will be.

Charm Your Friends With Imported Gifts

This Christmas you can charm your friends with unique, imported gifts available ot modest prices — and at the same time aid local YWCA services as well as a new self-help program for needy people around the globe.

Mrs. Elaine Wolfe, director of the North San Mateo YWCA, announced that this triple combination of Christmas giving is the result of a new project sponsored by the Church World Service.

It is "Mission Village Exhibit," a display of exotic gifts, handcrafted by refugees abroad. It will be shown Nov. 6 through Nov. 10 from 11 a. m. to 8 p. m. at the YWCA, 620 Sutter street, in downtown San Francisco.

Mrs. Wolfe said major proceeds will help give continuous employment to refugees who are in need of help to help themselves. A small percentage also will be set aside to benefit local YWCA services to the community.

The event is sponsired in the Bay Area by the Gold Mine Gift Shop, a YWCA volunteer service.

To be shown, for either immediate purchase or order for future delivery, will be such items as mother-of-pearl jewelry from the Holy Land, hammered copper and brass from Egypt, handwoven skirts from Okinawa, carved mahogany bowls from Haiti, olive wood crosses, georgette silk place mats from India, Hungarian pottery, African carvings, and embroidered silks and inlaid plates and boxes from the Far East. Many other objects, unobtainable from other sources will be displayed.

Good "out-door manners" include the prevention of fires of any kind, clearing litter from picnic areas, carrying a trash bag in your car, using the ashtray—in other words, being as careful on the highways and in the outdoors as you would be in your own home.

New Process To Make Seawater Drinkable

A New process to make fresh drinkable water from any contaminated supply, even seawater, was announced Oct. 26 by General Electric.

Dr. J. H. Hollomon, General Manager of the Company's general engineering laboratory, said General Electric had reviewed the method with the interior departments office of saline water, the agency in charge of all saline water demineralization research and development activities of the federal government.

Called "Diffusion Distillation," the method is promising for homes or small commercial establishments, Dr. Hollomon said. It might eventually be built as an automatic appliance the size of a refrigerator.

An experimental device using the process has been operating at the Company's general engineering laboratory in New York. It produces pure, soft water — hot enough to use directly for laundry or dishwashing — from otherwise unusable sources at the rate of 200 gallons per day.

Some time next year the engineers hope to have an advanced model ready for long trial runs to evaluate the design and gain operating experience.

Many Advantages

The device has several advantages over other distillation methods for low capacity application, Dr. Hollomon said — it works at normal air pressure and below the boiling point of water — it needs no operator —and there is only one moving part.

The experimental unit is a cylinder three feet long and two feet in diameter. Inside is a horizontal shaft with a number of discs mounted on it. A motor turns the shaft and discs at about one revolution per second. Bottom half of each disc is immersed in a pool of hot, incoming water.

Top half of the disc passes between hollow, cooled condenser plates. The rotation disc picks up a film from the pool, and water molecules evaporate from the film and diffuse across the short air gap to the cool stationary plate. There they condense into droplets of pure water and run by gravity into collecting troughs.

Incoming water circulates through the condenser plates first and is warmed by the still's own heat of condensation up to about 200 degrees. Fuel burners or electric heaters are needed only to boost the temperature to 210 degrees.

Power requirements are low —about 1/50th of one horsepower to turn the disc and drive a circulating pump. first-size electric motor would suffice.

Round The Clock

A typical unit for home use would operate around the clock, laboratory engineers said, shutting off automatically when the storage tank is filled, starting up again at any predetermined tank level.

Scale formation does not affect the still's efficiency because the heat transfer takes place between the water vapor and the clean condenser plates. Only after a long period, when the scale has nearly filled the space between disc and plate will the unit need cleaning or disc replacement, the engineers said.

Dr. Hollomon envisioned the diffusion still as having much wider usage than simply for seashore or island sites where natural fresh water is scarce. The still can handle water that is brackish, heavily mineralized, or polluted by organic matter, he said. The water is pasteurized and softened as well as purified. Its purity is not affected by varying amounts of solids in the salty or contaminated supply.

In addition to home use the diffusion may have great potential for self-service laundries, motels, restaurants, hospitals, military field units, and small boats, he said.

Rapid Transit Receives Still Another Blow

Bay Area Rapid Transit plans for San Mateo received another setback last week as members of the executive committee of the San Mateo County Development Association, Inc. passed a resolution to withdraw from the Rapid Transit District "As soon as possible."

Two more bombs were hurled at rapid transit plans for San Mateo County this month as the South San Francisco City Council and Burlingame Chamber of Commerce directors urged withdrawal from the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

The five-county district has been under heavy attack as the Governmental Research Council, Millbrae City Council and the San Mateo Chamber of Commerce had also supported withdrawal. The development association stated in a resolution that the cost of the transit system would place an extremely high tax burden on the taxpayers of San Mateo County.

Buy Chrysanthemums During November

There isn't a month in the year when nurseries don't offer hot-house Chrysanthemums in full bloom. But there isn't a better month to buy these beauties than November.

The Chrysanthemum's "natural" season is fall and its colors are mostly those of autumn, making it ideal for seasonal decor in the house or out of it. Sink the pots in garden bare spots, place them on the deck or use them for table decoration inside.

Msgr. Tozzi Leaves Estate

The Rt. Rev. Monsignor Egisto Tozzi of South San Francisco left the bulk of his estate to Catholic charities, according to terms of his will filed in Superior Court last week.

The will, dated April 26, 1954, leaves $10,000 to a dozen nieces and nephews in Italy, and $4,000 each to the Rev. A. R. Bandini and the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Harold Collins.

Father Tozzi bequeathed $5,000 to All Soul's church in South San Francisco, where he was pastor for 20 years. He also left $5,000 for masses.

Gifts of $2,000 each were made to a boy's school in Civitella D'Angeliano, the Italian village where Father Tozzi was born, to the Catholic church in that town, and to St. Patrick's seminary in Menlo Park.

The remainder of the estate was left to the school in Rome that bears his name, the Collegio Monsignore Egisto Tozzi.

Westlake 3rd Grade Visits Aquarium

Class studies of Pueblo Indians and desert plants and animals assumed meaningful significance when Mrs. Margaret Beber's third graders went on a recent study trip to the museum and aquarium at Golden Gate Park.

Beautiful Indian ollas — water jars used by the Pueblos— a desert diorama, complete with all the animals and cacti the children have studied about, were among the many attractions that aroused interest and curiosity. In addition, the snakes, lizards and tortoises found in the aquarium helped the children learn more about the desert animals.

In the classroom, the children are making a desert scene with animals they have made of clay. Small Indian ollas have already been completed and will be decorated in authentic Indian designs.

Assisting the class were three of the parents—Mrs. Eichelberger, Mrs. Becker and Mrs. MacDougall.

Wire Covering Saves Ranunculus Bulbs

It seems likely that there is more concern about birds eating the sprouting tops of Runnunculus than actual fact warrants. But certain gardeners do have trouble along this line with discouraging regularity.

You can avoid the risk by covering newly planted Ranunculus bulbs with one-inch chicken wire until the tops are well sprouted. Or easier, perhaps, you can grow them in wire-covered lug boxes until the tops are beyond the succulent stage and then transplant them to the garden. Birds won't bother them when they are 3 to 4 inches high.

TV and Radio

By MONA BAKER

We saw her for the first time lovely in a pale blue bouffant full-length gown graciously accepting congratulations for winning the "Emmy" at the annual television academy awards dinner held in Hollywood several years ago. At that time we were impressed by her beauty and charm, so it was indeed a privilege to meet and chat with Jane Wyatt in her suite at the Fairmont Hotel. She was in town to do a special series of introductions for KGO - TV's evening movie series.

We mentioned that we had watched her several years ago accepting the "Emmy" and she inquired "which one" and added in a somewhat embarrased voice, "you see I've won three." Talking to the talented star it is easy to understand why she has "won three" — not only is she a fine actress, but she is also a warm and genuine person.

We talked about families and were most surprised to discover that she is a grandmother. (She was married to Edgar Ward in 1937 and they have two sons, one married and another one 17 years old).

Her background includes starring roles in many movies, including Columbia's "Lost Horizon," the picture which established her as a star, many stage roles in which she starred with great names of the theater such as Charges Laughton and Louis Calhern, and television where she has won a permanent place in the hearts of American families for her delightful role in "Father Knows Best." Her latest television dramatic program is the starring role in "Little Lost Sheep," comedy by Ernest Kiroy which will be seen on the "U. S. Steel Hour" (CBS-KPIX, Nov. 1, 10 p. m.).

Hosting KGO-TV's late night movies series is Dennis O'Keefe who will be in town this week to tape his program and make public appearances on behalf of the show.

If you haven't seen colored television yet, do plan to drop by your television dealer on Nov. 1 when NBC, KRON-TV will telecast eight hours and 25 minutes of color broadeasting in the second "color day" by the network. In reading over the special list of colorcasts, we looked in vain for a fashion show. We're going to keep talking about it, and maybe one of these days there will be fashion shows in color.

TV NEWS BRIEFS: Good news from KGO-TV is that plans are rolling for San Francisco origination of Tennessee Ernie's show, which will be telecast Monday through Friday at a daytime hour to be announced beginning in the spring. This should certainly be a "shot in the arm" to San Francisco television.

A star-studded cast is scheduled for "Chevrolet's Golden Anniversary Show" which will be seen over CBS-KPIX on Nov. 2, at 8:30 p. m.

New day for KTVU'S excellent panel series "Doctor's New Conference." It will be shown on Mondays.

W. T. Grant Stores Featuring New Bowling Fashions

With America's 12 million women bowlers in mind, W. T. Grant stores across the nation, in cooperation with American Machine and Foundry Company, makers of automatic bowling equipment, have developed a line of clothing designed especially for the woman bowler. The Grant store at Westlake Shopping Center features the new "Pinspotter Fashions," according to Art Longman, manager of the store.

The new bowling fashions line, which is exclusive with Grants, combines high fashion with popular prices and its items are versatile enough for use in other sports as well. All feature wash-and-wear cotton fabrics, treated for wrinkle-resistance and shrinkage control. Practical features which the lady bowler will appreciate include blouses with free-action pleats and yoke backs and extra -long tuck-in shirt tails. Skirts have double kick-pleats front and back for free and easy stride and elastic gripper waistbands which prevent blouse ride-up. Capi slacks have adjustable elastic waistbands to fit smoothly but never bind. All "Pinspotter" items are color coordinated and can be mixed or matched to bring eye-appeal to every distaff bowling team.

The name "Pinspotter" derives from the ingenious machine developed by AMF which sets up the pins and returns the ball automatically. Each garment features a special "Pinspotter" tag containing "Bowling Tips by AMF."

Bodien Named To County Park Commission

A. J. Bodien of 28 Rice street, Daly City, has been appointed to the San Mateo County Recreation and Parks Commission. The appointment was made on Oct. 24 by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

Bodien, who was a member of the Daly City Council when John W. Marchbanks donated a city park, was for many years superintendent of Daly City parks. He served 14 years on the San Mateo County planning commission and was a member of the county grand jury in 1957.

SSF Fire Chief Retirement Set

Fire Chief A. J. Welte, head of the South San Francisco Fire Department for 32 years, will retire in March, 1962, upon reaching the mandatory retirement age of 65 years.

Welte, during his tenure, had been commanding officer at at least a dozen major multiple alarm fires, including blazes at the Swift and Company packing plant and at the old Fontana Food plant, which now houses the Dubuque Packing company.

Welte was first appointed fire chief on June 1, 1930, and has served longer than any other fire chief in the county with the exception of Chief Hugh F. Morris of San Bruno.

Nov. 2 Debate On Rapid Transit Is 'Important'

"One of the most important citizen gatherings ever held in San Mateo County" will be held Thursday evening at Mills High School, Millbrae at 8 p.m., according to C. Julian Wheeler, head of Town Hall Association, sponsors of the meeting.

Four leading men will discuss an issue, which if favored by the board of supervisors and voters will add nearly a third of a billion dollars to the bonded indebtedness of the county.

At a rate of 70 million dollar annually, it will take 40 years to pay this off. President Adrien J. Falk, of the Bay Area Rapid Transit district and Alan K. Browne, vice president of the Bank of America, both of San Francisco, will debate in favor of the San Mateo County joining the district. Both are native Californians who have devoted their lives to business and civil affairs in the Bay Area.

For many years, Falk was president of S & W Fine Foods. Browne has been affiliated 32 years with the Bank of America and associated companies. He is vice chairman and member of the executive committee of the Rapid Transit district.

Opponents

David D. Bohannon of San Mateo and R. L. Spangler of Redwood City will speak against this county joining the transit district.

Bohannon, developer of the Hillsdale shopping center, has made a study of the transportation history of many of American cities and their suburban areas. He believes that the big problem in San Mateo County is to get the people to use the rail cars who are using autos today.

Spangler, active in civic affairs of San Mateo county for years, says the colossal expenditures for duplicating the Southern Pacific commuter system is totally unnecessary.

DAVID D. BOHANNON
Head of the great Hillsdale Shopping Center, who will debate against San Mateo County joining Rapid Transit District.

ADRIEN J. FALK
President of Bay Area Rapid Transit District, who will debate in favor of San Mateo County joning the district.

ALAN K. BROWNE
Vice President of the Bank of America, San Francisco, who will debate in favor of San Mateo County joining the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

Optometrists Meet

Dr. Harry J. Levin of Westlake, president of the San Francisco and Marin Counties Optometric Society, will preside over a joint meeting of the Society and the Bay Area chapter of the National Association of Optometrists at the San Francisco Press and Union League Club Monday evening, Nov. 6.

Joseph Bottini of the Pure Food and Drug Administration will speak on standards of materials.

Touch Football Games Are Big Attraction

The Daly City Recreation Department's Touch Football Leagues have been drawing large crowds of spectators. Individual leagues are composed of fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade boys.

Fifth Grade — The PAL Eagles coached by Boyd Hillyer took the lead in the Fifth Grade league, edging out the Holy Angels Lions by a 2 point touchback. The Eagles have a three win, one tie record. Right behind them are the Holy Angels Lions with a two win, one tie and one loss record. The OLPH Blues are in third place with a 2-2 record.

Sixth Grade—Incomplete results in the Sixth Grade league have the PAL Bears, coached by Omar Grimes, leading with a perfect record. This week the Bears downed the Holy Angels Colts, 25-6. BYO Little Giants defeated the OLPH Golds, 9-0, and BYA Art Colvin won over the BYA Rebels, 20-0.

Seventh Grade — George Pedroni's PAL Tigers led the Seventh Grade league with a 4-0 record. Tied for second place are the PAL Knights and the PAL Golden Bears with 3-1 records. Saturday play saw the PAL Tigers take first place by knocking out the PAL Knights, 20-0. The OLPH Bulldogs romped over the Holy Angels, 38-0, and PAL Golden Bears dropped Parkmerced, 19-0.

Eighth Grade — Ev Heick's BYA Darts fought it out Saturday with the PAL Cowboys, coached by Rich Brewer, for the top spot in the Eighth Grade league. The passing of quarterback John Heick to Norman Cipriano and the defensive play of Reggie Baumgardner and Tim Herbert proved too much for the Cowboys. Three interceptions by Baumgardner, plus a 25 yard touchdown run on the second one he picked off, gives him player of the week honors. Two toushdown passes from John Heirk to Cipriano alcounted for the other scores.

Darts 18, Cowboys 7. In another Eighth Grade game, Rich Watso's Parkmerced team collected their first win, downing the OLPH Rams, 7-2.

DESIGNER FASHIONS by Sue Scott, Distinctive Apparel, will highlight the Thursday, Nov. 2, Girl Fashion Sow "YWCA Design For You," from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Westlake Bowl. Chairman Dee Sklavos is seen showing the program to designer Sue Scott, (right), and model Ginger Straight. Free nursery service will be provided. For reservations call PL 6-7370.

American Legion Auxiliary Helps 'CARE' Program

The Eighth District, American Legion Auxiliary, Department of California, is participating in the organization's State-wide "CARE" Program through donations of funds to the needy in Colombia, announced Mrs. Lula Lucas, Eighth District president. Through the support of the local groups, California is leading all other states in contributions to CARE.

Units of the American Legion Auxiliary are qualifying for awards to be made by CARE at the end of their organization's fiscal year. Money donated will be used for food, tools, medical supplies and for other types of CARE packages.

"We feel we are helping the people of Colombia to help themselves when we give them the tools of their trades and food to sustain them," Mrs. Lucas said. "We are participating in a food and food production program. Our objective in Colombia is to give deserving people a new start in keeping with our own American ideals and pioneer spirit. We have high hopes of winning a CARE Citation for our community."

Some of the tools will be used by American Peace Corps representatives in Colombia to carry out the Corps' program. Funds contributed by the American Legion Auxiliary will be directed particularly to the California Peace Corpsmen in Colombia.

Parents Without Partners Meet

Harold Simpson, Marin County schools phychologist, will speak on "How Father Can Be Effective Living Apart or Superceded by a More Current Model" at the Nov. 2 meeting of Parents Without Partners, Inc., at 8 p. m. at the Friends Meeting House, 2160 Lake street, San Francisco.

Parents Without Partners, Inc., is a non-profit, non-sectarian organization devoted to the welfare and interests of single parents and their children. Through its educational program, this national organization attempts to answer some of the special problems faced by single parents.

Any single parent, widowed, separated or divorced, regardless of who has custody of the children, is welcome at the meetings held the first and third Thursdays of each month at the Friends Meeting House, 2160 Lake street, San Francisco.

Gardener's Checklist

1. Plant evergreens this coming month and watch for the first deciduous plants in nurseries. Early planting enables new plants to get the full advantage of winter rains.
2. It's a little late to plant new lawns inland, but coastal gardeners can still set them out.
3. Plant Lilies, spring bulbs of all sorts. The supply is still good in November.
4. Shop nurseries for fall color. Check the berried shrubs, especially the Pyracanthas. Plant Chrysanthemums from pots. Look for unusual fall foliage color.
5. Clean up leaves as they fall and compost them. Do not compost any mildewed or otherwise diseased plant material.

SAFETY FOR BLIND

When giving directions to a blind person help avoid serious accidents by being sure you say "right" and "left" according to the way he is facing, advises the American Foundation for the Blind.

Variegation: One Key To Garden Variety

It's amusing when you stop to consider it, that variegation in the foliage of a plant usually means the plant is lacking in food. However, many plants actually have variegated foliage.

Like the knots in Pine, however, this break in a plant's color has been turned to good horticultural use. Today we find nurseries full of variegated shrubs and the popularity is on the increase.

Their overuse can be unappealing, but their judicious placement in shrub borders can provide a real key to variety in the garden. Spot them here and there where they will stand out against darker green companions, or feature them in limited accompaniment to their own kind, as in a short hedge, for instance.

As mentioned above, there is no lack of variegated material to be found in California Association of Nurserymen showyards. We find it in the handsomely speckled Gold Dust Plant, in Wax Leaf Privet, in False Holly, in conifers such as Arborvitae and as a ground cover in the Ivy family. Variegation shows up in countless other plants.

If variegation is a key to variety, there are others on the same key chain that can also be used—other deviations from the normal green in nature's garden. The gardener can liven his color scheme by keeping an eye to all foliage colors—to the reds of Japanese Maple, the blue-gray of Pineapple Guava and the light gray of Dusty Miller and of Bush Germander. These in combination with evergreen and variegated material can spice up your garden.

Don't overdo a good thing, but don't overlook the possibilities.. Better to go too far in your first try with colored foliage than never to try it at all.

Tall Bearded Iris May Be Divided

Tall beared iris may still be divided if clumps are crowded, though November division may be too late to insure bloom next spring. One thing about waiting until now, however, is that you won't have to water the newly divided plants until they get established. Winter rains will do the job for you.

CENTRAL AMERICAN EDUCATION

By: Paris B. Simmons

(The writer extends a very cordial invitation to his readers to attend the Benjamin Franklin PTA meeting, 8 p.m., November 7, when a special program will be presented by the four teachers that scootered from Daly City through Central America).

Recently, in connection with the promotion of understanding between North America and Mexico, 124 eighth grade students were asked to describe a Mexican citizen. Form this, a sterotyped pattern evolved, which is presented for serious consideration in this article. The description which follows is a result of a tabulation of remarks made by the students, based on the assumption that if 10 per cent or more of the students expressed a similar viewpoint, it could be taken as a part of the final pattern. If less than 10 per cent expressed an opinion, it was discarded and not taken into consideration. In the pattern presented, the opinions expressed were indicated on 25 to 78 per cent of all replies.

Realizing that there must be misconceptions about the North American by Central Americans, which might be of worthy of investigation, questionnaires have been forwarded, asking for descriptions, which will be tabulated and presented to the reader. "Stereotyped pattern compiled from 124 eighth grade students on description of the Mexican citizen."

"The Mexican (according to the students) is poor, but religious. He has a dark complexion and black hair. He lives with his large family in a one or two room adobe, mud or grass hut, without any floors or windows. The Mexican does not have any cars and travels by ox-cart.

They dress in bright costumes, or old rags. The men wear blankets on their backs. None of the Mexican people wears shoes.

The food is poor, very different from the United States, hot and spicy. Many do not have beds or indoor bathrooms. schools.

Mexicans are always taking naps, when they are not working very hard as farm laborers. They are not very clean, do not have electricity, and do not care much about improving themselves. They have many fiestas."

It is pointed out by the compiler, that there were a number of positive statements made in the student answers, but these were not repeated sufficiently to fall within the 10 per cent cut-off range.

Analysis of stereotyed pattern: Where did these children derive such general misconceptions? It is evident that the pattern is similar to that given by the motion picture industry in its portrayals of the Mexican peon. But the motion picture industry is not by itself guilty in allowing such a false picture to exist as fact. Our schools must face the realization that a social study unit, or project, in which just a segment of a population or living condition of a country is presented, as typical of the whole country, is a leading contributor towards bigotry. Such a presentation is insufficient in any attempt to award the perception that is so vital in building international goodwill.

It cannot, however, be denied that there is poverty in Mexico.

It cannot be said, as a general rule of the thumb, that all Mexican Nationals are poor. This is simply not so. The homes of the Mexican citizens vary greatly in size, construction and appearance. In some of the smaller villages there are huts constructed of adobe, and there are adobe factories, but this is not a general pattern. There are other homes, many of them, that are constructed of the same materials commonly used in North America. In addition, housing tracts are being built to replace homes that are not adequate. As for cars, scooters and other modes of transportation as known in the United States, they are in evidence in far greater numbers than the ox-cart which is occasionally seen along the highway.

Except in the Indian villages, the costumes of the Mexican is not unlike that of the North American. There are national costumes worn during religious celebrations, which are colorful, but these are not the everyday dress of the Mexican woman. There are also tribal costumes which are worn daily, but only in the specific area where the Indian group lives.

Anyone traveling along the Mexican highway will soon see that the Mexican is interested in his own personal cleanliness. In the desert areas where there is a scarcity of water, conditions prevent unlimited use of water and conservation must be practiced. In the small villages, it is customary to see the women in the streams, washing huge bundles of clothing and placing them to dry on trees, bushes, or on the grass. A close look at these clothes will show the Mexican to have a propensity toward colors, but the clothing is in good condition, not rags or tatters.

The picture of the Mexican in a large brimmed hat, white trousers, shirt, with a blanket (serape) over his shoulder, is one occasionally seen in Mexico, but definitely not a costume of all the people, nor even a majority.

What North American youngster does not enjoy going barefoot? The Mexican youngster is no different. There are some adults (very few) that do not wear shoes, but most are in some type of footwear. This is commonly a type of sandal, which is most practical in Mexico—particularly in those areas where it is very warm. The sandals allow for air circulation.

Contrary to popular belief, Mexican food is not necessarily spicy or hot. A type of chili sauce may be served with meals in restaurants, but the use of it is left to the discretion of the diner. As in the United States, there are restaurants that serve excellent meals, and others that are not so excellent. The tortilla is commonly served with meals, but in the larger cities, bread is a part of the ment. The Mexican baker is an artist.

The belief that the Mexican does not sleep on beds, is one that may be put aside with just a little reasoning. In the smaller villages the beds may be framework with straw mattresses and pillows, but the bed is used and is a part of the household furniture. The small wildlife in Mexico, including spiders and snakes, are no more loved there than here.

As stated in the previous articie of this series, Mexico suffers from a lack of technicians in the area of industrial arts. In spite of this shortage many homes do have indoor plumbing. Some of the restrooms of the business establishments or cafes appear unusual in construction to the North American—most do have water or chemical disposal units.

The patterns showing a belief that the schools were few that were indoors is not true of the many schools visited and witnessed by the writer. Quite the contrary. Having a similar misconception before the trip was made, he was constantly on the lookout for such outdoor schools. All seen were indoor types, with windows and doors. The schools along the highway and in rural areas appeared quite presentable, although not of the size or construction of the United States schools, except in the larger cities, where they were comparable.

The traditional siesta hour is one that has been held as an object of ridicule by the North American, without consideration being given to its purpose. There is a three-hour break during the heat of the day in which the citizen returns to his home, relaxes and awaits the time when he can return to work in comfort. His hours are quite different than those enjoyed in the United States.

He may start work as early as 5 or 6 a.m., take his siesta hours from 11 or 12, for three hours, then return to work until 7, 8 or later. Six days of work is a general pattern in this country, with some occupations working the entire week. The siesta hour allows for work when the individual is most efficient.

While many Mexicans work on farms, and are excellent workers, there are many who work in factories, industry, small and large businesses. They are in a wide variety of occupations, as varied as our own. The tourist income is the first major product of Mexico and many are employed in this field. There are fine artists, musicians, writers, educators and professional people all contributing to their national culture. To visit the many educational and cultural exhibits in Mexico City alone would take a visitor many, many weeks.

It is not possible to change a stereotyped pattern, such as given by the 124 students at the beginning of this article, with a few paragraphs of debate. It must be done through education, and the writer, as an educator, strongly recommends the teaching of Mexico or any of the Central American republics through basis understandings. Finding itms of life, and ways of life that are similar, rather than attempting to find things that are different. Building up these common understandings to a point where the differences will be viewed not as a negative aspect of a foreign nation, but rather a positive foundation for friendly, international relations.

Visit Post Office

The second grade classes of Miss Mary Helen Monroe and Mrs. Jeane Oberlander, at Vista Mar, were taken on a study trip to the Westlake post office on October 19.

The children were given a guided tour through the post office and were able to see the processes the mail goes through before it leaves the station. They learned the differences between the first, second, third, and fourth class mail and were able to see different kinds of stamps used. They also learned about stamp cancelling, weighing, sorting, and bundling.

To add a personal touch to their trip, each of the children took a stamped letter to the post office. They watched as each of their letters was placed in the stamp cancelling machine and then sent on its way through the post office. There were many happily surprised parents receiving a letter from their second garde children on the day following the trip.

The children now have a deeper appreciation of our postal employees and a better comprehension of the services given by these employees to the community. All agreed that it was a most interesting and informative visit.

EXOTIC TREASURES — Two Stanford University co-eds, Alison Skeel (left) and Mary Ann Odegaard, are shown here with some of the objects from the exotic exhibit of more than 300 national treasures of Thailand abroad for the first time in history and brought to this country under the patronage of the President of the United States and the King of Thailand that are now on display at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor in Lincoln Park, San Francisco, through Dec. 10. Gathered from Thailand's Royal Collections, the National Museum in Bangkok, ancient Buddist monasteries and famed private Thai collections, the exhibit spans 1,400 years of the history of this colorful kingdom. A special feature is 30 gold objects from the recently discovered Ayudhya treasure. They include brooches, bracelets, rings and plaques from a 500-year-old tomb at Ayldhya, Siam's ancient capital, and built for two princely brothers who killed each other in an elephant duel for the throne.

College Of San Mateo Plans For Homecoming

Preparations for 1961 Homecoming Activities have moved into high gear at College of San Mateo. Following midterms, traditionally a "dead week" on the activities calendar, student committees began final arrangements for the two-day celebration.

The first attention of Homecoming centers on the selection of a Queen, with the final choice to be made on Friday, Nov. 3. Assemblies Chairman Carol Schultheis of Millbrae is in charge of the preliminary presentation and the final screening of candidates. The general election, to narrow the field to four finalists, is under the direction of Sandy Marsh, San Mateo.

The first appearance of the Queen and her attendants will be at the bonfire and rally, at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 3, at the Beach Parking Lot, Coyote Point.

Members of the Veterans Club, with Jim Licavoli of Redwood City as president, will build the mammoth bonfire. On signal, the club members will light the fire as the start of the Homecoming Game Rally.

The game itself, against Santa Rosa, is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 4, at the San Mateo High School field. Full entertainment for half-time is being arranged by Janet Cerrato and Liz Barker, both of Redwood City. Maxine Furuike, a CSM sophomore and national baton champion, will appear with the marching band, directed by Dick Crest.

As the climax to the activities, the Homecoming Dance will be held at 9 p.m. Saturday night at the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco. Under the chairmanship of Vicki Baskett of San Carlos, the Socials Committee is completing arrangements for the gala formal, which will feature music by Walt Tolleson.

As in former years, graduates of College of San Mateo are invited to be guests of the Associated Students at the dance. The necessary reservations may be made by calling the Student Activities office and specifying name and class.

The Homecoming committee has issued an invitation to the general public to attend the bonfire-rally and game. For the football game, CSM's family ticket at $1 will be in effect, as for other games of the season.

Rivera Class Views Planetarium Show

The color program at the Morrison Planetarium in Golden Gate Park was studied and enjoyed by Mr. Luppino's fifth and sixth grade class on Friday, October 20.

Scientific principles were explained along with experiments that had been discussed by the pupils during their regular science activities.

The children were fascinated by nature's display of colors in the sky — the Aurora. When seen in northern latitudes it is known as the Aurora Borealis (the Northern Lights). Aurora was the goddess of the dawn. In the southern hemisphere the southern lights are called Aurora Astralis.

The program is repeated annually and includes rainbows, halos encircling the sun, the source of heavenly coloration, and — as a grand climax — the Aurorae or Northern Lights. Carefully selected music accompanies the program.

Pupils in Room 12 are learning more regarding the subject by studying the pamphlets "Light and Color in the Sky," published by the planetarium and other research organizations.

Christopher Columbus School Children Write Poetry

Realizing that creativeness cannot be taught, only released and guided, the teachers in Columbus School are providing their children with numerous opportunities for creative, written expression.

Writing starts from ideas. To help pupils "feel" these ideas so that they may be taught to write them, is one of the major goals of the teachers in Columbus School.

Stephanie Floyd, a fifth grader in Mrs. Guymon's class, wrote the following poem to coincide with Halloween, from an idea she had from her study of the human body.

Witches on broomsticks,
Fly through the sky,
Ghosts without noses,
Sail by.
Spooks on their pumpkins,
Stick out their tongues,
Show off their breathing
Without any lungs.
Goblins and their wives,
Make-believes, too,
Black copper kettles,
In the night blue.
Kids with their costumes,
Giggle to and fro,
All getting ready,
To have the big show.
Moon out and shining,
Against the blue sky,
Ghosts and the witches
Pass us by.

From a second grade study of zoo animals in Mrs. Alta Reed's class, the following poem was written by Robert Ward:

I love the animals at the fair,
The zebras, wolves, and fuzzy bears,
The monkeys, lions, and raccoons,
But most of all the big baboons.

Susan Garrissere, a student in Mr. Davis' sixth grade class, wrote the poem below, as part of her study of Christopher Columbus:

Out to sea Columbus went,
Not even caring where he went,
He had to prove the world was round,
So he could bring gifts to the Spanish crown;
He sailed and sailed without a stop,
Refusing even to turn about;
At last he found what is now our home,
Telling everyone "now you can roam."

Holly Kelley wrote this poem during their observance of U. N. Week. Holly is a pupil in Miss Marino's fifth grade class.

Yes, I am an American!
Happy, proud and true,
Glad that I'm an American,
In this country of red, white and blue.
Thankful for the men who fought for us,
In every way they did,
Proud of how they did it,
Even before I was a kid.

This is just a sampling of the writing being done by our children in the public schools. So many other poems and stories have been written, but we have not been able to include them all. It is enough to show that creativeness does exist, and for all age levels, in our children.

Lyons Coffee Shop To Be Constructed In San Bruno

Keeping pace with the rapid growth of the Peninsula, construction was begun Thursday, Oct. 19, in San Bruno on one of the most modern coffee shops in the world with official ground breaking ceremonies attended by civic officials.

The new $200,000 Lyons Coffee Shop, located next to the Post Office at San Bruno avenue and El Camino Plaza, is expected to be completed by next February.

A new conception in architectural design for restaurants, the coffee shop with its ultra modern exterior and interior will seat 109 people, with parking for 23 automobiles.

When completed, the Lyons Coffee Shop, owned and managed by Lyons Concessions, operators of the famed Red Chimney restaurant in Stonestown, will be open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

To be completely air conditioned, the coffee shop will have a unique stepped diamond shaped roof. Extensive use of natural rock and glass also is called for in the building design along with an out-of-doors fireplace.

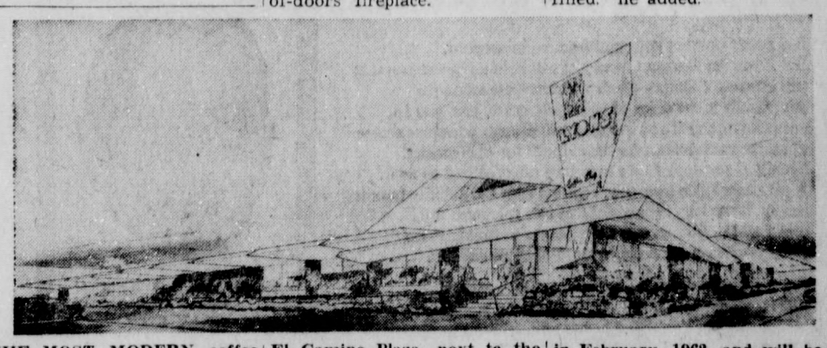
Contractor for the Lyons Coffee Shop is Williams & Burrows, 500 Harbor boulevard, Belmont. Architects are Armet & Davis, AIA, Los Angeles with Edward Wong, San Francisco, associate architect.

The 3,775 square foot coffee shop on a 12,000 square foot lot, will specialize in breakfasts at all hours, broasted chicken, salads, specialty sandwiches and complete luncheons and dinners.

The very latest developments in electronic cooking equipment will be installed, including a chicken broaster which will cook a chicken in six minutes.

"Lyons Concessions has been two years in the planning of this coffee shop and in obtaining the finest and most efficient design and the most modern equipment," Gary Nachmann, vice president of the organization, said.

"With the growth of the area and increase in population, we feel there is a definite service the Lyons Coffee Shop will provide and a very definite need that will be filled." he added.



THE MOST MODERN coffee shop in the United States is now under construction in San Bruno. To be known as Lyons Coffee Shop, it will be owned and managed by Lyons Concessions, operators of the famed Red Chimney in Stonestown. Located at San Bruno Ave. and El Camino Plaza, next to the Post Office, the building is of a new architectural design for restaurants (above), employing generous use of natural rock and glass, with a stepped, diamond shaped roof and an out-of-doors fireplace. The Lyons Coffee Shop will be completed in February, 1962, and will be open 24 hours a day, specializing in breakfasts, "broasted" chicken, salads, specialty sandwiches and complete luncheons and dinners. Cost of construction is approximately $200,000.

Hillsdale Ends Short Westmoor Winning Streak

Hillsdale ended Westmoor High's one-game winning streak as the Knights crushed the Rams, 41-0, on the Rram gridiron on Friday, Oct. 27.

The Knights shook the Ram defense by springing halfback Don Leydig through the line for 53 and 79 yard touchdown runs. Leydig's 53 yarder came the first time Hillsdale had the ball. Don's 79 yarder came on the first play of the second period.

Bob Futterer scored Hillsdale's third and fourth touchdowns on runs of 25 and seven yards. At halftime the Knights held an overwhelming 27 to 0 lead.

Ram defense leaked two more scores in the third quarter, one on Ray Plate's five-yard pass to Mike Abbott and the other on a ten-yard run by Bud English.

Rams' only offensive drive came in the opening period. They went 59 yards before stalling on Hillsdale's nine-yard line. Other than this, most of the game was played on Westmoor's end of the field.

The game was dominated by Hillsdale the same way they did in 1959 when the Knights were victorious, 54-0. The Rams won last year's game played on the Knights' home field.

Rams Cross Country Teams Remain Strong

Westmoor's cross-country team was defeated on Oct. 23 in all three races by Hillsdale, rated as one of the nation's top five cross-country teams.

However, this defeat didn't affect the Rams' power over other Peninsula League teams.

Westmoor went to South City on Oct. 27 and was victorious over its two competitors, South City and Burlingame, in both the varsity and the junior varsity races.

The Ram frosh-soph team won its first victory over Burlingame, but lost to South City. These two meets gave Westmoor's varsity cross-country team an 8-1 record which puts the Rams' in second place in the league.

On Oct. 28, Westmoor entered the Terra Nova Invitational and the varsity Rams' took a third place, losing second place to Terra Nova by three points. The frosh-soph and the junior varsity, however, didn't place in the upper brackets.

Westmoor, Jefferson Point To Grid Wins

Daly City's struggling football teams go into another week of football with that all important question—can we win this one?

Jefferson coach Joe McGrath says his team can win at Mills although it took a 27-7 whipping last Friday against a strong Capuchino 11. The Jefferson Indians have a 1-3 season record.

"Mills won't be as tough as Capuchino," McGrath said. The Jefferson Indians, Friday, were beaten into the ground, although the team looked good in the first half.

Jefferson's Sam Ennon was a standout on both offense and defense, making most of the tackles. Best on the line was Armando Cadena. Quarterback Bob Miller hit about 11 of 22 of his passes, but tired in the final quarter.

HOPE TO WIN

Westmoor, with three wins and three losses, may have an easy win on the home field this Friday against San Mateo. Coach Pete Matisi's charges will be undergoing a return to fundamentals due to a complete beating received at the hands of Hillsdale, 41-0, last Friday.

Coach Matisi said his team "broke down" and will have to "put a ball game together" to win this Friday "San Mateo is not one of the better teams in the league," he said "We should give them a good go."

He praised the playing of Steve Schunck, left end, in Friday's game

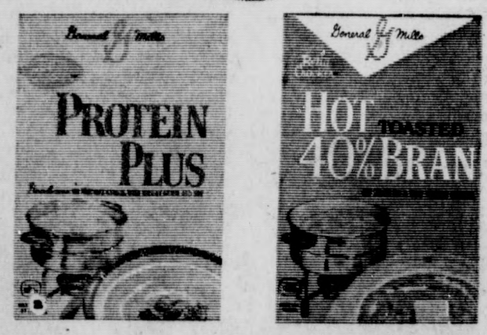
"Two easy ways to serve a good, hot breakfast that's nutritious and good to eat," says Betty Crocker

It takes only 2-to-3 minutes to cook your family a stick-to-the-ribs breakfast with these hot cereals from General Mills. They offer other health benefits, too.



Protein Plus combines the full, rich goodness of two important grains — oats and wheat — to give you good taste and good nutrition. That includes plenty of protein — natural, full strength protein. Protein Plus actually contains as much protein as meat and milk. And the flavor is delightful.

Hot Toasted 40% Bran is the only cereal that provides all the natural benefits of bran, and at the same time gives you a nourishing hot breakfast. And the flavor is delicious — a "country kitchen" flavor like the robust stone-ground cereals of the old days.

Try one of these unique hot cereals for breakfast soon. Remember, as Betty Crocker says:

"You and your family need a good, healthy breakfast to start you on your way... And the healthier your breakfast, the happier your day."

Is Life Insurance a good investment?

It depends on what you want from an investment. But if you are like most men, you will need an investment that will do these 4 things—create an immediate estate for your family in the event of your early death, give you an adequate income if you are disabled, provide a lifetime source of retirement income, plus liquid funds for emergencies. From this standpoint Life Insurance ranks second to none. A permanent Life Insurance contract with a Disability Income benefit, is the only investment that can guarantee this combination. Even in periods of severe economic stress, Life Insurance has a unique record of dependability.

For more information on what an investment in Life Insurance can do for you, just call the Man from Manufacturers. You'll find he has an interesting story to tell.
